Human Resources

March 24, 2020

Laurie Morris, President
Association of Employees Supporting Education Services

Dear Ms. Morris,

Thank you for your letters of March 12 and 19, 2020. I appreciate your understanding of the unique circumstances we currently find ourselves in. We appreciate that these are difficult times and understand the heightened anxiety experienced by our employees. The University is working diligently to adapt to this significant public health situation, we care about our employees and value the efforts of all staff supporting this process.

In sending my letter of March 17, 2020, it was not my intent to suggest that the University is not open to discussion with AESES. I am open to meeting with you and would like to include our Labour Relations team in this discussion. If you could provide your availability for next week, we will coordinate our schedules for a meeting. I would suggest we meet by video conference to align with social distancing protocols.

Thank you for your patience and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Roberta Marsh
Chief Human Resources Officer
